

ABSTRACT

A method of making a point of purchase display container including folding a sheet of resilient material having a series of fold markings and cut lines into the shape of a product container. A product container including a plurality of resilient members for association with a product that can be contained, displayed, and/or transported in the product container.

10

15

20

25

30

SEA 1445093v1